THEY'VE BEEN TO THE POINT OF NO RETURN. THE ONLY WAY OUT IS TO GET TO THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN.

A FURTHER APPROXIMATE QUARTER OF A MILE DOWN THE MOUNTAIN, THE TWO MEN WERE STOPPED BY A GROUP OF MEN. THE MEN WERE ALL WEARING RED SUITS AND HATS.

AND THAT'S THE WAY IT WAS. THE MEN WERE ALL WEARING RED SUITS AND HATS.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders among different types of jobs. The subjects were 600 employees from a large manufacturing company who had been employed for at least one year. They completed a questionnaire about their work activities and health status. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers in jobs that required heavy lifting, repetitive motions, and prolonged standing or sitting than among workers in jobs that did not require these activities. The findings suggest that employers should consider job design factors such as workload, repetition, and posture when hiring and assigning tasks to employees in order to reduce the risk of musculoskeletal disorders.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different settings. The study included 100 nurses from a hospital setting and 100 nurses from a community setting. Data were collected through a self-administered questionnaire. Results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was significantly higher among hospital nurses compared to community nurses.

1 I AM, I TELL YOU, A LITTLE MORE THAN THREE FEET TALL, AND I WEIGH ABOUT THE SAME AS A BABY. BUT I HAVE THE BRAIN OF A MAN, AND I HAVE THE COURAGE OF A MAN. I AM BATMAN.

2 THAT'S INTERESTING, BUT I DON'T KNOW A LOT ABOUT YOU. I'VE HEARD YOU'RE A VERY RICH MAN. IS THAT TRUE?

3 YES, I AM. I HAVE A LOT OF MONEY. BUT I DON'T WANT TO USE IT TO GET RICH. I WANT TO USE IT TO HELP OTHER PEOPLE. I WANT TO BE A GOOD MAN.

4 I AM INTERESTED IN YOU. YOU ARE A VERY RICH MAN, AND YOU ARE A GOOD MAN. I WANT TO KNOW MORE ABOUT YOU. I WANT TO KNOW HOW YOU DO IT.

FOUR-FOOTED DETECTIVES

Only days, a little boy wandered home for breakfast. Later, when his mother called for him, he had disappeared. A thorough search was made of the neighborhood, but no trace of the child could be found. How ever anxious had been a dog walking toward the house, it grew so exhausted and started searching the way to.

After many hours, the child was still not found so the local police called for aid. A man arrived with two trained Bloodhounds. The dogs were given a piece of clothing belonging to the child, and in a short time found him by tracking the scent from the clothing.

The exact ancestry of the Bloodhound cannot be determined, but some dogs with exceptional abilities of smell can be traced back 1000 years. According to his writings, Aristotle at some length how dogs were used to track down people. It is also recorded that in the third century A.D., a "bloodhound" was used for the same purpose.

The Bloodhound, as we know him today, is probably descended from the dogs which William the Conqueror brought to England from France in 1066. We know that the part of France from which William came had many dogs trained to track for hunting purposes. In Normandy, as France, prior to the conquest was known to have bred and used all kinds of dogs which were used for tracking both man and animals. Among the Middle Ages, many governments and noble lords are believed to have owned packs of dogs of the blood variety, which were used for short distances of work. These undoubtedly are the ancestors of the modern Bloodhound.

In our own history, much mention is made of Bloodhounds. During the Civil War, Bloodhounds were used by military forces for tracking deserters and guerrilla bands hidden in the hills. Also, it will be recalled that in Harriet Beecher Stowe's famous book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," plenty were always trained dogs to find runaway slaves. These dogs were depicted as being Bloodhoundy animals, trained not only to track, but to kill their victims as well. Hence, the name Bloodhound.

However, this is not true of the Bloodhound. He is not the dangerous, vicious animal that many people believe him to be. He is by nature extremely gentle and often nervous, and he does not need a blood hunt.

to lead, but an order of drifting, lead, etc. "Dark Track Cabin" did much to hasten the reputation of the Bloodhound, but to-day many people realize that that breed is one of the finest, and that their usefulness is not in almost any direction.

The Bloodhound is usually trained for one of two purposes, that is, to be a tracker or a show dog. There is a great difference between the two. Tracking dogs do not usually have as fine points as the show variety. They are not as large, do not have as pointed a head, their feet are not as big, and their tails are as bushy, and their coats are not so smooth and so well haired as the show dog. Bloodhounds average about 30 inches in height and weigh about 50 pounds.

Trackers also can be divided into two classes, warm weather and cold weather. This means that one dog is especially adapted to following a track, or warm trail, and may not be so skilled at following an old or cold trail, while a cold weather is particularly keen at tracking an old trail.

Bloodhounds are usually used on game when tracking. A Bloodhound can track as if water on land, find on a track or across ground by a fence or haystack.

Training begins early. The most popular method is to give the pup a piece of clothing belonging to a person living in the quarry. While the dog is watching him, the quarry walks a hundred yards away. When the quarry is out of sight, the pup is released, and following his natural instincts, usually follows the quarry to his hiding place. If the dog recognizes the article early in a game and rewarded.

One man has found another method which has proved satisfactory. He puts a piece of food in a jar where the dog is used to, and then goes through the same procedure with the quarry taking with the jar. This is to teach him to follow only one scent, and not be distracted by other scents he will come across in his tracking.

The pup's schooling begins when he is about 10 months old. After this initial phase, he is put to work with an older and more experienced dog. Then they usually work in pairs. Bloodhounds must be taught to work harmoniously together.

One of the best known Bloodhound trainers is V. C. Mulligan of Kentucky. This man had the famous dog "Hospital" at working 18000 square foot prints.

Another well-known trainer is W. W. "Cy" Burton of the New York State Police. His famous dogs are based at Tarrytown, N. Y. and have been many times used not only in police and detective work, but also in many many instances of finding lost game. In the Long Beach Police track in 1941 Sgt. Burton used his Bloodhounds to find the escaped convicts in the Hudson River. After crossing in the other side, the dogs upon picked up the scent and tracked the subjects to a hill where they were eventually captured.

In Southern states where Bloodhounds are used, that is, if a criminal escapes from a work gang, the dogs are brought to the area where he escaped from and start tracking. Bloodhounds are taught to use their scent, too, so that many a escaped criminal has been found hiding in a tree.

Bloodhounds do not usually lay while tracking, as is commonly thought. The world, of course, were the criminal they usually work quickly and only lay when the quarry has been used or trapped so that the trainers can find them.

"THEY'RE ALL GOING TO THE CAR SHOW ON THE 'SUNDAY' THROUGH TOWN. A LOT OF THE CARS ARE NEW, AND THE CAR SHOW IS BEING HELD IN THE PARKING LOT."

Abstract—This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group (CON) or a resistance training group (RT). The RT group performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program, while the CON group remained sedentary. The RT group showed significant increases in muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is effective in improving muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition in sedentary, middle-aged men.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the company is not meeting its sales targets.

Editorial: "There, there, comfort," is the refrain of the book. I do not understand it. I have no sympathy for the author's attitude. I have no sympathy for the author's attitude. I have no sympathy for the author's attitude.

Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the body composition and muscle strength of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The men were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 5) and an exercise group (n = 5). The exercise group performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program, while the control group remained sedentary. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in body fat percentage and an increase in muscle strength compared to the control group. The control group showed no significant changes in body composition or muscle strength. The findings suggest that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program can effectively reduce body fat and increase muscle strength in sedentary, middle-aged men.

THE

Abstract. This paper is devoted to the study of the asymptotic behavior of the solutions of the Cauchy problem for the Burgers equation with respect to the initial data. The asymptotic behavior of the solutions is studied in the case of the initial data which are bounded and continuous functions of the spatial variable. The asymptotic behavior of the solutions is studied in the case of the initial data which are bounded and continuous functions of the spatial variable. The asymptotic behavior of the solutions is studied in the case of the initial data which are bounded and continuous functions of the spatial variable.
